I hope my love will move, heal and inspire many in a world that needs positivity and a light tune to resonate with.

MoJoh is a 36-year old singer & songwriter from Planet Earth and co-founder of WakeTheFuckUp.info. He is currently travelling South East Asia and later on this year Europe and the States spreading the message of love & light by playing concerts, organizing beach-clean ups with local communities, visiting kids at local schools and building a network of like-minded people that will hopefully continue to grow.

He started his music career in a band called THE MAINSTREAM - a band formed through Myspace.com - a collaboration of multiple artists from all over this planet where he was one of the producers and the lead-singer. Within 8 years (2004-2012) the band released three albums through their own label and played 400 shows on three different continents. from crowds as big as 40000 people in Italy to as small as 3 people on a tennis court in Chile. When the band finally broke up MoJoh started his solo-career & over the course 3 years he released two self-funded, self produced albums in German language under his alter ego LowmaX - He purposely decided to play music without any of that pressure of mass marketing or playing what the mainstream wanted and instead, he felt like playing shows that he was passionate to play. But everything comes to an end and for quite some time he has been feeling the desire to sing in English again and get back to touring internationally. simply missing the feeling of traveling to other countries.

The first album called 'Going Home' is already finished and released (available exclusively through this website). The follow-up will be called 'Coming Home'. His plan for the third and final album 'Home' is to record it in various locations all over this wonderful planet with background noises such as the ocean, the wind, birds and trees.

'In times like these where the attention span of the people is rather limited and everybody from the industry tells me to focus on singles only and not waste my time producing an album this might seem like a crazy idea but I still love the old-fashioned concept of an album - that's what I grew up with and I still remember the days when I spent all my money in a local record store and actually took the time to listen to a record until I started liking it!

The first record 'Going home' is already available through this website. After you're finished reading this text you should check it out! The majority of the album is 'homemade' and recorded -

I didn't go into any big studio for that but instead used whatever was available to record music - and sometimes that meant to record in the basement of my drummer's house or at a friend's place. Most of the time I recorded at my own apartment which is where I live and also work as a producer for other artists.

MoJoh has also just started working on 'EARTH SONGS' - an infinite EP again collaborating with different artist on songs that are all related to Mother Earth. The plan is to release one song & video per month until the end of time. You can find these songs and videos on this website - later on they will be available on major online platforms.

With planning shows and booking tours across the globe, I will always continue to play my music on the street wherever I go. To connect one-on-one with the people. To keep it real. I always wanted to do something powerfully good through music and that's still the main objective. My songs carry a message of love, light & strength - I am trying to raise awareness, not for what's bad out there - I think at this point we all know. Media is full of it - wherever we look! To me it's more important to focus on all the good things we are capable of as a human race. In other words: let's love ourselves & each other and the planet we live on. After a long journey I've finally come to realize this is all that matters.
